

Antoinette Slick is an accomplished, prestigious award winning artist from Ormond Beach FL who has held leadership positions in several arts organizations. We are so very excited to welcome her back to the Halifax Art Festival as a judge for this year's show. Her path as an artist transitioned from pursuits in watercolors to nonobjective acrylics. There is a moment in time, a before and after, to Antoinette Slick's life as an artist. She speaks of this transition--a literal geographical move from Ohio to Florida--as the moment when her work shifted into place, when an understanding occurred and liberation began. She credits instructors who pushed her to think more deeply about her work and its intentions, and peers who inspired her and welcomed her into their community. She has also given back to her art communities as the president of the following organizations: Board of Trustees, Museum of Arts and Sciences, Daytona Beach, FL, Board of Directors, Ormond Memorial Art Museum, Ormond Beach, FL, Florida Water Color Association, Art League of Daytona Beach, Daytona Beach, FL and Ambassador, Ringling Museum of Art in Sarasota, Florida.

Tracey Miner is an award winning creative talent now residing in Ormond Beach, Florida. His career spanned advertising and event production life on two coasts. Consistent to these pursuits was his love of art and design. Early in his life as an accomplished illustrator and painter in acrylics and oils, as well as a photographer, Tracey won numerous local awards in NY for his creations on canvas and Kodachrome.

Moving to California, his love for design and photography lead him into the world of video and later digital media using both to develop the video medium. As a leader on the bleeding edge of motion graphics, Tracey developed an organization of young creative people who became industry innovators. Tracey's Company, MinerPro, created new methods of bringing design to the screen. Tracey's work allowed him to work with clients such as Apple, Adobe and Google to develop new methods of creativity.

Tracey's creative eye gave him an entre' into the world of video and stage design. As a creative talent, he has won numerous awards for his work – earning numerous Best of Show, Clio's, Tellys and Aurora Awards over a 25-year period. Tracey's experience was so appreciated he was named as a judge for the past 10 years for both the Telly and Aurora organizations. He finds the ability to share his abilities with others to be the most rewarding aspect of enjoying a God given talent.

Always in search of creative outlets, Tracey has participated in juried art shows in Some of Northern California and High Sierra's largest fine art festivals, displaying his love for photography. Tracey has enjoyed using his stage design experience to make the booth, as well as the art displayed, all part of the overall creative experience.

In retirement now, Tracey is looking for ways to share his experience in the community he and his wife, Betsy, now call home.
